Policy and Politics: What Is Ours to Do?
By Mary-Margaret Zindren, EVP/Executive Director

Over the past few months since the Dobbs decision draft was leaked, a variety of members have reached out to me, some strongly encouraging AIA or AIA Minnesota to put forward a statement decrying the overturning of Roe v. Wade; others saying that if AIA were to do so, they would leave the organization.

AIA national recently put forward a formal statement about their advocacy agenda that, without saying it directly, by inference of timing and context suggests that they will not be making a formal statement on the Dobbs decision. The statement cites these elements as the organization’s guiding criteria:

1. Are architects, design professionals/the profession impacted by this policy?
2. Is architecture part of the problem and/or the solution?
3. Do architects have a unique perspective to bring to this policy issue?

It is the obligation of the state and local chapters of AIA in Minnesota to be aligned with AIA national in terms of our policy agenda, as required for accreditation as AIA components. I would also note that the answers to these questions are rarely simply “yes” or “no” but a matter of degrees.

In questions of whether and what to weigh in on as an organization, Dr. Mindy Fullilove, Hon. AIA, M.D. – a recent AIA Minnesota conference keynote speaker and current member of the AIA national Board of Directors – sums it up well: “What is ours to do?” What is ours to do as an association representing and serving this region’s architecture community?

In addition to our stated mission to “advance a vital profession, vibrant communities, and architecture that endures,” I see our work as supporting each and every member in the pursuit of their individual definition of career success and, to the best of our ability, addressing the barriers that get in the way of that success. Often, those barriers are defined and viewed differently by different members – in the magnitude or importance of each barrier, its origins, and the best ways to remove or mitigate the barrier.

Our policy agenda is driven by our mission, values, and strategic priorities, and refined through a collaborative process of recognizing and bridging differences within the membership. While it can feel like the differences among us are moving people farther away from each other, I see hope in the fact that the vast majority of polarizing issues are actually not binary in nature; opinions and beliefs are complex and fall along continuums.

It behooves us to not fall into the traps of polarization, mindsets of “us vs. them,” that lead us to generalize, to reduce each other to abstractions, and to keep us from working together toward the shared goals of fostering a great profession and achieving excellence in design of the built environment.

Where people feel that a belief is so central to who they are, to their values and their integrity, that it is a bright line issue for them – a matter of conscience and not losing oneself, one’s soul – I understand and support them in drawing and not crossing that boundary. (I have my own bright lines, one of which is the right to same-sex marriage and LGBTQIA+ rights; it is a major factor in where I live and travel, and the workplace policies I am comfortable with.)

We each need to gain internal clarity about where our boundaries and bright lines are and why, and where we are open to bridging toward others, even if just to a small degree.

In my 30 years of working with associations, most of my work has focused on bringing people together to achieve shared goals. In this work, I’ve learned three things – often the hard way – that guide me in the midst of tumultuous times and in working through controversial issues. I hope that they resonate with you:

Each of us contains multitudes. The existence of complexity and contradiction within each person is a universal truth. Do not make assumptions about who people are, what they believe, or why.

Trust and respect are foundational to shared work. This is true even and especially when we disagree with each other.

There is no one right way and no one solution. We can find multiple paths forward if we invest ourselves in trusting, respecting, and working to understand each other.

As the annual collaborative process gets underway to prepare AIA Minnesota’s policy positions and advocacy agenda, we will be keeping these learnings in mind while asking “What is ours to do?” as an organization of architecture professionals. We will keep listening, learning, and collaborating in the work of removing the barriers to your best career and the best of what’s possible in the built environment.

CALL TO ACTION

Early Voting Underway for Minnesota Primaries

Minnesota Primary Election Day: Tuesday, August 9
Minnesota General Election Day: Tuesday, November 8

Don’t miss your chance to make your voice heard! With the 2020 census came redistricting in Minnesota, which means more races around the state. Get informed and vote early by mail or in person for the August 9 primaries! Learn more »

Voting in the Congressional District 1 Special Election is also underway, to replace the late Rep. Jim Hagedorn. Note: despite the fact that election day is August 9, the same day as the primaries, this is a final selection for this seat. Learn more »

Need to register to vote? Not sure if your registration is current? Visit the Secretary of State's Elections and Voting website to learn more about registration and key deadlines during this crucial election year.

Note: Minnesota allows registration at polling sites on election day. But you can save time by making sure your registration is current before you go to cast your vote! Pre-registration must be completed by October 18 for the November 8 general election.

Primaries take place for in-person voting on August 9. Make your voice heard!

Call for Leaders

AIA Minnesota is seeking applications for officer and board leadership positions that will begin January 1, 2023. This is an opportunity to grow your leadership skills, expand the circle of professionals you work with, or raise your profile in the community. By joining an AIA Minnesota leadership team you will be engaged in key decisions as we continue to implement change and address AIA's priorities of climate action and advancing racial justice and equity in our organization, our profession, and our communities. Application deadline is September 19. AIA Seeks Minnesota Representative for Small Firm Exchange

The mission of the AIA Small Firm Exchange (SFx) is to advance the mutual interests of architects practicing in small firms. The objectives of the AIA SFx are three-fold:

- Advocate the value of small firms, the national SFx, and local SFx groups, both within the AIA and to the public.
- Curate and disseminate the most pertinent resources and information, from the AIA & elsewhere, that benefit small firms.
- Inform the AIA of current issues facing small firms and areas in which current resources/information are lacking.

Role of the State Representative

- Be a key conduit for information and support between small firms at AIA chapters within your state and the AIA national Small Firm Exchange.
- Provide constructive feedback on AIA national’s progress in delivering value to small firm members.
- Serve as ambassador for small firm engagement within your state.

Applications accepted until October 1. Learn more »

Gold Medal Submissions Due August 31

The AIA Minnesota Gold Medal Award is one of the highest honors bestowed by the association, recognizing an individual or two individuals (living or deceased) who have made lasting contributions to the field of architecture. The Gold Medal Award Selection Committee evaluates candidates based on how well they meet program criteria, which include how their contributions have demonstrated great depth and breadth, having a cumulative effect on the profession of architecture in Minnesota; addressed the future of architecture while honoring its tradition; transcended or united specific areas of expertise; and become widely known — by architects, designers, educators, and the public — for the quality of their work.

Entries are due Friday, August 31 at 12:00 pm CST. Learn more »

Honor Awards Open for Submissions

Our Honor Awards acknowledge outstanding built projects by AIA Minnesota members, or firms that are owned by AIA Minnesota members, that practice professionally in Minnesota. Submit your project for consideration today!

Please carefully follow new photo sizing instructions, found on the AIA Minnesota website and within Award Force, as you complete your submission.

Entries are due Friday, September 30 at 12:00 pm CST. Learn more »

MINNESOTA ARCHITECTURAL FOUNDATION

Clarence Wigington Scholars Announced

The Minnesota Architectural Foundation (MAF) awards Clarence Wigington Architectural tuition scholarships to individuals who identify as Black, Indigenous, or person of color who wish to pursue a professional education in architecture and who hold a promise for succeeding in such a career pursuit. After reviewing this year’s applications, the Clarence Wigington Architectural Scholarship committee selected four scholarship recipients who upon success will continue to receive $2,000 each semester.

- Nathan Davies, a University of Minnesota student headed into his second year of the Master of Architecture program.
- Latoya Dennis, a student at Duwoody College of Technology with two years remaining in her Bachelor of Architecture program.
- Ruweyda Mohamed, a first year Master of Architecture student at the University of Minnesota.
- Qadiym Washington – a current student at Dunwoody College of Technology pursuing a bachelor’s degree in architecture and expecting to graduate in May 2025.

Women in Architecture Grant Applications Open

The Minnesota Architectural Foundation (MAF) Women In Architecture (WIA) Fund promotes equity by supporting the advancement of women in the profession of architecture by increasing the diversity of perspectives in design processes thereby leading to more inclusive design solutions. MAF is now accepting their next round of grant applications and will distribute up to $5,000 in 2022! The work accomplished with the grant must directly support and impact women in the profession of architecture.

COMMITTEE/KNOWLEDGE COMMUNITY SPOTLIGHT

Council of Firms Knowledge Community
The Council of Firms Knowledge Community provides a forum for firm owners and principals to advance the profession and their own practices through collegial sharing of ideas, knowledge, and best practices. Discussions generally focus on a particular challenge for architecture firms and are sometimes sparked by a presentation by an industry partner or other special guest.

Please contact Deanna Christiansen for more information.

LEADERSHIP FORUM

Leadership Forum 2022
The final two sessions of the 2022 Leadership Forum took place in July. Mary-Margaret Zindren led the cohort in a discussion on the concepts of rethinking, adapting, and reflecting as it relates to leadership. In small groups they discussed the key learnings from their participation in Leadership Forum as a foundation for charting the next steps of their leadership journey. Their assignment was then to create a “touchpoint” to serve as a reminder going forward of key learnings, their core values, core purpose, goals, and/or next steps.

The last session on July 27 was the first in-person session for this year’s cohort. The session was kicked off with a keynote address from Bryan Lee, Colloqate Design, which was then followed by each member of the cohort sharing the Touchpoint project. The afternoon concluded with a reception to celebrate their accomplishment. Congratulations to this year’s cohort!
And thank you to all the content experts who led one or more sessions and helped facilitate discussions:

- Paul Bauknight, Minneapolis Parks Foundation
- Bill Baxley, AIA, Gensler
- Nancy Blankfard, FAIA, HGA
- Mike Fischer, AIA, LHB
- Nancy Fischer, The Good Life Revolution
- Sheri Hansen, AIA Minnesota
- Donna Harris, Minnehaha Academy
- Bryan Lee, Colloqate Design
- Representative Fue Lee, MN House of Representatives
- Debra Magnuson, executive coach, career counselor, and leadership consultant
- Angie McKinley, AIA Minnesota
- Mary Eisele Slack, Eisele & Associates
- Anthony Taylor, Equity Outdoors
- Ann Voda, AIA, Bentz/Thompson/Rietow
- Mary-Margaret Zindren, AIA Minnesota

And last, but not least, thank you to Damaris Hollingworth, AIA, Design by Melo, who served as the advisor for this year’s Forum.
