AIA MINNESOTA MATRIX NEWSLETTER

July 2021

Updated Policy on In-Person Meetings and Masks

The AIA Minnesota Board approved the following policy on in-person meetings and masks for the remainder of 2021:

Board, committee, knowledge community, and task force meetings remain primarily virtual with one to two in-person meetings per year. (Virtual meetings allow more members to attend and reduce travel-related concerns, while in-person social gatherings grow connections among members.) For AIA Minnesota gatherings or events (including those of committees and KCs) – indoor or outdoor – masks will be optional and can be worn as a personal preference. Attendees are asked to not comment on or inquire about why someone is wearing a mask, as the choice to do so could relate to any number of personal health-related concerns.

Questions? Please contact Amber Allardyce.

Dream. Believe. Do. Repeat.

By Anna Pravinata, AIA, NOMA, AIA Minnesota President

Like many people in the US, we send holiday cards around the end of the year. Our card from few years back said the following:

Dream – Believe – Do – Repeat

*To all of our favorite people,
We hope you dream big,*

*Believe in your dreams,
Act on your dreams,
And repeat it all over again.*

What does this have to do with architecture or design? In my day-to-day life as an architect, I get to work with the brightest scientists who are trying to solve the most pressing issues in the world, from curing cancer to food safety and security. They are innovators in each of their fields and their thought process starts with a dream of a better “something.” They start by observing, asking questions, making scenario predictions, testing ideas, evaluating results, and finally, after many, many tries, they may get to realize their dream of that better something.

As architects and designers, we are trained to imagine something that is not there. We start with a piece of blank paper; we draw one line, and then another, and another, until a combination of those lines becomes a drawing of a building or a bench, or whatever “something” we’re creating. We understand that design is an iterative process in which we seek to define problems and challenge assumptions to find alternative solutions that may not be apparent at the beginning of the process.

One of the sessions at the A’21 Virtual Conference highlighted the importance of this moment: “The profession of architecture is at an inflection point. Many firms, spurred by urgent conversations about racial equity and the growing threat of climate change, as well as COVID-19’s shakeup of our traditional work environments, are being challenged to apply strategic solutions to several crucial issues at once.”

What does an inflection point mean to our profession? I think we need to look holistically at the world around us beyond just designing buildings. Like scientists, we need to apply our training in design thinking to solving the most pressing issues in the world. We need to be part of the conversations on many things, like racial equity, climate change, or the post-pandemic way of life, which may not necessarily start with traditional ideas about building design.

Let’s use this inflection point to dream up a whole new built environment for our communities. I think when we broaden our view of what our profession can do, we will find more ways to innovate and show our profession’s value to a larger constituency. We can make our communities into a wonderful new “something” if we keep dreaming, believing, doing, and repeating.

CALL TO ACTION

Submit Your Project for the 25 Year Award

The 25 Year Award recognizes completed, built projects – completed at least 25 but not more than 50 years ago. (Projects must be completed after January 1, 1971, and before December 31, 1996. Note: Use the first date when a certificate of occupancy is issued.) Entries must have been designed by firms with architects registered and practicing professionally in Minnesota.

Entries must be nominated or submitted by a current AIA Minnesota member. Nominations may be made by any AIA Minnesota member; the nominator does not need to be the original architect on the project.

The deadline to submit an entry is Friday, July 16, 2021, at 12:00 pm. Learn more »

Louis Lundgren Award for Service Now Accepting Submissions

The Louis Lundgren Award for Service recognizes up to two individual AIA Minnesota members for their outstanding contributions in the area of community and professional service. Through their work as citizen architects, recipients of the award are regarded by their peers for their prolonged and effective volunteer activism. Any member of AIA Minnesota who graduated from a NAAB-accredited program no later than 2017 and whose membership is in good standing at the time of nomination is eligible. Emeritus members are eligible.

The deadline to submit an entry is Friday, July 16, 2021, at 12:00 pm. Learn more »

Submit an Industry Leader for the Collaborative Achievement Award (Formerly Special Award)

Through the Collaborative Awards program, AIA Minnesota recognizes individuals and organizations for exceptional contributions to AIA, the profession, or the quality of the built environment.

Nominees may be recognized for significant achievement or a body of work in a range of endeavors including, but not limited to, administration; architectural education; architectural scholarship and criticism; building technology innovation; construction; industrial design; information science; professions allied with architecture and architectural patronage; public policy and design advocacy; research, art, and craftsmanship; service to AIA or any of its components; visualization, recording, and illustration; and writing and publishing. The person making the nomination must be a current AIA Minnesota member. The person being nominated for the award does not need to be an AIA member.

The deadline to submit an entry is Friday, July 16, 2021, at 12:00 pm. Learn more »

Registration Now Open for 2021 National Intercultural Leadership Program

This September, AIA Minnesota will again host an intensive, 9-session virtual leadership program open to members and practitioners around the country, intended to grow the capacity of leaders in the architecture community to lead inclusively and to engage in sustained action to address systemic racism in the profession of architecture and in the built environment.

Sessions are focused on understanding identity, power and conflict styles, and recognizing differences that make a difference-particularly difference related to gender and race/ethnicity-as applied to the culture of architecture firms and to the built environment. Participants will take the Intercultural Development Inventory (IDI) Assessment as well as the Intercultural Conflict-Styles Inventory (ICS).

Seats are limited; register early. Learn more »

AIA Minnesota is proud to unveil the 17 new and remodeled architect-designed homes that will be featured on the 2021 Homes by Architects Tour—and a new Tour website!

Join us this September for a hybrid exploration of the best of residential design from our region's talented architecture community. From accessory dwelling units to lakeside cabins, from remodeled split-levels to midcentury modern, this year's event offers a close-up look at how architectural design can make a difference in how we live. The 2021 tour features 17 projects, including four homes presented in a virtual format from September 18–26, and 13 available to tour in person on September 18 and 19.

Follow us on Instagram, Facebook, and Twitter for behind-the-scenes photos and stories, sneak peeks and more! Use hashtag #HBAT2021 to join the conversation.

SPONSORSHIP AND ADVERTISING OPPORTUNITIES

Sponsorship opportunities and program advertising are now available. Align your company with these architect-designed homes to reach a targeted audience who seek out the best in good design! Contact Pam Nelson for more information.

Ways to Stay with AIA: Membership Options

If you or someone you know has recently been laid off, furloughed, their start date has been indefinitely postponed, or they are self-employed or an independent contractor and their income has been significantly impacted by the pandemic, we can help with options for maintaining AIA membership. We can also provide guidance on a wide variety of ways to stay engaged with the architecture community. Please reach out to Amber Allardyce for more information.

COMMITTEE/KNOWLEDGE COMMUNITY SPOTLIGHT

Architecture in the Schools Committee

AIA Minnesota's Architecture in the Schools committee seeks to engage and inspire the K-12 community through inclusive and collaborative educational programs that make architecture accessible, understandable, and highly valued throughout the state. Members engage with students in the classroom, online, and at community events to introduce the concepts of architecture and emphasize the value of the built environment.

Currently, the committee has a relationship with Minneapolis Public Schools to enrich their GEMS & GISE after-school and summer programs with the development of an architecture unit. Members are also gearing up to present hands-on model-building activities to kids, families, and educators at the 2021 STEM Day at the Minnesota State Fair event. If you enjoy working with students and would like to participate, contact staff liaisons Angie McKinley or PaviElle French.

Exploring Advocacy

This year's Leadership Forum has been meeting virtually twice a month with sessions led by a variety of leadership content experts. The two sessions in June introduced new topics of focus for the Forum: advocacy and becoming a citizen architect. The speakers who shared their inspiring advocacy stories were Mark Kalar, AIA; Tate Walker, AIA; Alissa Luepke Pier, AIA; and Paul Bauknight, Jr. Their stories were encouraging and inspirational. Sheri Hansen, AIA Minnesota director of communications, advocacy, and public outreach, led a small group exercise in which each Forum participant identified the one issue they felt passionate about advocating on, and helped them begin creating their own advocacy stories.

No action is needed. Please note, this pertains only to the AIA CES member audit and not local licensing jurisdictions.

BLUEPRINT FOR BETTER: HOW TO TALK TO CLIENTS ABOUT MATERIALS TRANSPARENCY

A few healthier material choices can go a long way, but many clients need more information to make materials transparency a design priority. Including materials health and environmental priorities in early conversations can be a critical step to ensuring a project is not only designed well but creates long-term benefits for clients. Learn how to meet clients where they are with AIA's tips for talking to clients about materials transparency. Learn more »

BLUEPRINT FOR BETTER: DESIGN TOOLS TO HELP STOP CLIMATE CHANGE

Embodied carbon will be responsible for 72% of all CO<sub>2</sub> emissions of new buildings constructed in the next 10 years. While operational carbon can be reduced, embodied carbon released during construction—including extracting, transporting, and manufacturing materials—can never be recaptured. Fortunately, tools that measure embodied carbon offer a new way forward. Learn more »
